

MR. BENNIS BRIGHT JUST BEFORE HAMMOND DIED

GOT 100 PILLS OF MORPHINE WORCESTER

Purchased Them The Day After the Man Was Taken Ill.

HE DIED THREE DAYS LATER

Then with his death, the report at the request of the police was not made public. The preceding officials did not want to alarm Mrs. Bennis by showing their hands at once. They wanted more time to gather additional evidence, and they were satisfied to give her liberty as long as they could feel sure of her presence when wanted.

Now that the woman is under stress people who have known her for years are beginning to rehearse certain scenes in the past which have been considered somewhat mysterious.

HUSBAND'S DEATH RECALLED.

Two years ago, there was talk that an overdose of morphine contributed to his death, and that she was the beneficiary of an insurance policy for $25,000. In view of the fact that they had lived happily together, this point does not seem significant. The officers are taking no heed of this story nor of other tales, such as the death of an infant child which was buried on the farm and subsequently discovered by order of the medical examiner and buried in the town cemetery.

There is nothing to show that the child died of natural causes, and his burial on the farm was regarded as a suspicious rather than a usual act. So, too, regarded the death of a domestic about seven years ago.

The domestic was hired in an intimate way in the house of Mrs. Bennis. She had been at the house for only a few days when she was found dead in the kitchen. The death resulted from indigestion in the course of which she had eaten a large quantity of food.

SHOT MAN AT HOUSE.

Damir also recalls the fact that Mrs. Bennis about a month or two ago was in the house of the late Mr. Bennis. She was the victim of the following circumstances. When the State road was being built, Mrs. Bennis was in the house. She was shot by a group of men who were passing by. She was hit in the back and fell. She was found by a neighbor and taken to the hospital. She died there.

There was an angry exchange of words, and Mrs. Bennis was taken to the hospital. She died there.

THINK SUICIDE IS TERRIBLE CHASE MYSTERY

Judge Berry's Report in Inquest Believed to Close the Famous Case.

In the report of Judge Berry of the Lynn court on the investigation into the death of Mrs. Jennie P. Chase of Swampscott, which was held at the district attorney's office on Wednesday, will appear the full statements of those officials who have been investigated in the mystery.

By the statements which have been given over carefully by Judge Berry, and also in the inquest proceedings, it is believed that it will be shown that Mrs. Chase committed suicide and that no one but herself was responsible for her death.

Judge Berry refused today to say what his findings were. It is said among officials, however, that there will be no further action taken by the district attorney and that the case is closed.

By the Chase case, the dead woman's husband had been committed to the district attorney's office. He was held in the inquest proceedings. He gave his last words when it was asked by the officials and declared that everything had been told about the wife's death. Dr. Chase's medical record was a great insurance to the officials in this case. Dr. Chase's medical record was a great insurance to the officials in this case.

AUTO STARTS AND THROWS 2 WOMEN

While the men were out in the morning to find a lost dog, a car was driven by Frank L. Chisholm of Lynn, who was driving on the highway. The car started and threw two women out of the car. The women were injured.

ELECTRIC CAR KILLS MAN

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 14.—Robert Perry, unmarried, was killed near Long Meadow yesterday by being run over by a trolley car.

Is This Woman a Poisoner?

Three photographs of Mrs. Bennis of "the mystery farm," where so many deaths have occurred.

Locked up in the jail at Worcester, Mrs. Bennis is one of the most notorious prisoners ever taken there. She is absolutely confident that the grand jury will find her innocent, and that she will soon be back on her farm with her aged mother.

MORPHINE CALLED "MORPHINE FIEND"

Special to the Boston American.

Worcester, May 14.—That John Hammond, the farm hand, also died under suspicious circumstances on "Mystery Farm" in Barre, and for whose death Mrs. Bennis, the proprietor of the farm, is locked in the Worcester street jail charged with his death, was a morphine fiend was emphatically stated by a WASHINGTON AMERICAN reporter yesterday.

Three people who know John Hammond well before his death and were acquainted with his habits, have told him he was a morphine fiend. They also say that he was a morphine fiend. They also say that he was a morphine fiend.

THE DAYLIGHT STORE

GILCHRIST CO

BOSTON'S BEST CLOTHING DEPT. STORE

WASHINGTON STREET THROUGH TO WINTER STREET

Grand Opening

and Celebration of

New Corner Store

MONDAY, May 14, marks the formal opening of our New Corner Store—another step forward in the mercantile life of Boston—a new era in retailing and a new betterment to public service. The store, a new addition to our present headquarters, with a grand entrance on the corner of Washington and Winter Streets, we believe is the most beautiful in Boston.

No other locality in Greater Boston has one-third of the transit lines converging to it, being a direct centre to Surface, Elevated and Subway cars as well as to both North and South Stations.

We believe everybody who is interested in Boston or in commercial progress will be proud of it—not because it is ours, but because of what it means: the progressive spirit of Boston commercial life; intelligent endeavor to attain completeness in convenience and comfort for the people.

"Welcome" is written over our doors. We ask you to come and see the results of our efforts, made possible by your patronage, which gives this great and growing city a store typical of all the best ideas in modern retailing.

We Respectfully Request That You Consider This a Personal Invitation to be Present

PROSECUTE LEGISLATIVE SPLIT ON GAS SCALE

Many Leading Members Resent Support Given the "Sliding" Measure.

'BETRAYAL OF PRINCIPLES'

That the Boston Public Franchise League is not a unit for the proposed "sliding scale" will be demonstrated during the discussion of the bill in the House.

The many members have previously withdrawn from the league because of the attitude of members representing the legislative committee, and members in the "sliding scale" will also be shown to be a fact.

Three members of the Public Franchise League had one former member who has been named to Senate clerk, chairman of the Public Franchise Committee, and the other two of the committee in opposing the bill to the Legislature at a time when they had been led to believe it was still in the hands of the committee.

Some influential men who have for years been members of the Public Franchise League, and who have been active in the movement for the "sliding scale" will also be shown to be a fact.

It is a sample case of the kind of interest that certain men have been permitted to take in the affairs of the league. It was for a long time one of the most active members of the league, and until this year he was always regarded by his fellow members as one of the most active and reliable.

SAV MILLIONAIRE WIFE IN DIVORCE TRIAL DRANK COCKTAILS WITH BOY WHO IS NAMED

MRS. LENA LAWSON

Correspondent in Marital Fight That Has Stirred Brooklyn Society Is but 21 Years Old.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Few divorce trials have proven more sensational than that of William M. Lawson, the millionaire millionaire of Brooklyn, against his wife, Mrs. Lena Lawson.

The correspondence in the case of William M. Lawson, a more boy, William M. Lawson, was put on the stand to prove that Mrs. Lawson drank beer, cocktails and wine with the young fellow at various places.

Early in the trial Carmichael produced a sensation in court by rising in his seat and asserting that Mrs. Lawson had threatened him.

"That woman," said Carmichael, pointing to Mrs. Lawson, "has just said that she will kill me."

"That is a lie," said Carmichael, "and I know it. I know I could do it."

"He did the housework," said Carmichael, "and I know it. I know I could do it."

FEELER'S CASE CONTINUED, IN $10,000 BONDS

Delay of Two More Weeks for Newburyport Defaulting
City Treasurer.

SAYS HE CAN MAKE GOOD

Special to the Boston American. NEWBURYPORT, May 14.—James V. Feeler, the defaulting city treasurer, charged with the embezzlement of $40,000 of the city's funds, was brought before Judge Simpson in the court today, and had his case continued two weeks under the same bonds, $10,000.

Feeler was as good as his word on Thursday, and seemed not to pay the slightest attention to the movements of his counsel.

Poker still maintains that he can make good the losses to the city and will have some $10,000 left, after he has realized on all his holdings.

Mayor Houston is now preparing to take the necessary steps to call upon the ten bondsmen of Feeler to settle. The bonds men are all citizens of this place, and each is liable for $2,000. A lot of them, it is believed, will not be able to pay if called upon.

Mayor Houston also directed Feeler's attorney that the defaulting treasurer was going on for only three or four years. He said that this morning, May 14, will open a period of three years.

A Boston newspaper, an expert account by the local special committee of the Boston City Council, has been in the work of going over Feeler's books.

Feeler is as cool and unconcerned in the conduct of his case as he was in the case of the late Dr. Livingston. He has no friends here, and his friends have not helped him in the case.

ROOSEVELT RECHANDLER; WHICH ONE IS THE LIAR?

Attorney General Moody Confronts with His Chief on Falsehood Incident.

President Silent; New Hampshire
Man, Fighting Mad, Will Make Answer.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Attorney General Moody had a long conference with the President at the White House today regarding the Tillman-Chandler charges against the President and the part that Attorney General took in the negotiations between the administration and the Democratic leaders of the Senate on the railroad bill.

Mr. Moody believed that the Attorney General will be asked to uphold the President's version of the incident, and that he should be able to do so, his position would be that of a man who is not more than possible that Senator Tillman and ex-Senator Chandler may call on Mr. Moody for the information in the conviction that there would be no public statement from the White House, and that it was they, the Senate, who had made the charge.

Senator Tillman and Attorney General Moody had a long conference at the White House and the above announcement was made after they had conferred.

Attorney General Moody said that there were no differences between the President and the Senate in the matter.

Senator Tillman, who asked whether he could explain the discrepancy between Mr. Chandler's statement and the President's, said:

MEN ROOSEVELT HAS CALLED LIARS

The President has said that many a man is a liar. He used the term freely, sometimes in all its baldness and at other times as he did in the case of ex-Senator Chandler, whose statement he designated as "unquallifiedly false." These are some of the men he has accused of lacking in veracity:

HENRY M. WHITNEY, of Boston, who, he said, lies about a tariff conversation with him.

JOHN F. WALLACE, formerly at the head of the Panama Canal commission.

EX-SENATOR WILLIAM E. CHANDLER, now president of the Spanish treaty claim commission.

HERBERT W. BOWEN, formerly minister to Venezuela, whom he rebuked for making charges against "Loomis, acting."

ALTON B. PARKER, the Democratic candidate for President in 1904, for saying the trust, corporation and insurance companies contributed to the Republican campaign in 1904.

GEORGE O. SHIELDS, president of the League of American Sportsmen, after a dispute about the use of automatic shot guns in the Southwest.

SENATOR THOMAS C. PLATT, very diplomatically, for announcing that he had forced Representative Olcott for chairman of the New York county committee.

MRS. HANTER TROVEY ME DEAR PROBED BY GRAND JURY ALL OVER N. E.

Case of Harvard Instructor,
Accused of Poisoning Wife,
Taken Up To-day.

LEADER IN MYSTIC BAND

Many Meetings Are Held

The mysterious death of Mrs. Eliza Hunter Trovey, wife of the Harvard instructor, who was alleged to have been poisoned by the Cambridge professor, was taken up for consideration today by the Middlesex County Grand Jury, which is in special session at Lowell.

Frank E. Bryant, the student who made his home with the Hunters, was sworn in before the jury to tell what he knew of the baffling case, as was also the instructor's brother, Patrick J. Hunter, of Cambridge.

Nothing is known as to the whereabouts of Hunter, although there have been reports to the effect that he had been seen in a German settlement in Illinois and also in a park in Chicago.

The police of Cambridge are not able to go further with the case, they declare, until the presence of Hunter, except to lay the case before the Grand Jury.

That Hunter was a resident member of a mysterious cult of German mysticism, known as the "Thule Society," was learned from the fact that he had been seen at the meetings of the society, which have been held at the home of the Hunter family in the town of Cambridge.

He formerly was very active in the affairs of the organization, but it was reported that he had discontinued all connection with it after he left Chicago University.

In what way the fact may be connected with the case, they declare, until the presence of Hunter, except to lay the case before the Grand Jury.

FATHER TURNS SON
OVER TO POLICE

John Henshaw, the forty-year-old man who was sentenced to the Lyman School at Lowell for larceny, and who escaped from the Lyman School on Friday afternoon, was turned over to the police today by his father, John Henshaw, of Boston.

He will be taken at once to the Lowell institution.

President Roosevelt on Lying; From His Writings and Speeches

The liar is no whit better than the thief.

It puts a premium upon knavery untruthfully to attack an honest man or even with hysterical exaggeration to assail a bad man with untruth.

The men who with stern sobriety and truth assail the many evils of our times are the leaders.

The soul of every country is enlightened whenever an honest man is assailed or even when a wicked man is truthfully assailed.

In the long run the most unpleasant truth is a safer companion than a pleasant falsehood.

You can put more truth in a man who will tell the truth, because you know where that man is; you know what he means.

If any one lies, he has the habit of untruthfulness; you cannot deal with him, because there is nothing to depend on.

Truth-telling is a virtue upon which we should not only insist in the schools and at home, but in business and in politics just as much.

The business man or politician who does not tell the truth, cheats; and for the cheat we should have no use in any walk of life.

We need in our public life, as in our private life, the virtues that every one could practice if he would.

I do not believe in a bluff. I feel about a nation as we all may about a man; let him not say anything that he cannot make good, and having said it, let him make it good.

Nothing can make good citizenship in men who have not got in them courage, hardihood, decency, ability, the spirit of truth-telling and truth-seeking.

We must have honest, fearless and able administration—a square deal for every man, great or small, rich or poor.

den's denial made through Senator Lodge.

Yes, but it would take too long at this time.

Official Washington is full of veracity rarely heard by the people.

Senator Tillman and former Senator Chandler are the only two men who have been in the Senate since the Civil War.

Senator Tillman, in his remarkable record of 40 years in the Senate, has never been in the Senate since the Civil War.

Senator Chandler, who was in the Senate from 1870 to 1890, was the only man who was in the Senate since the Civil War.

Honor to the Great French Nation

The People of France KNOW WHAT THEY WANT, and They Get It

There was a good deal of valuable newspaper ink wasted recently on "The Great Riot and Popular Uprising in France." There WASN'T any great riot, and there WASN'T any popular uprising. The elections have been held. THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT—REALLY REPRESENTING THE PEOPLE—IS STRONGER THAN EVER, and the French way of government for the people and by the people is going on, as usual, most successfully.

There were a few dull-minded idiots of the old school, a few representatives of would-be kings, second-rate Imperialists, foolish old Conservatives with thin, dyed hair, standing around the corners with francs in their hands trying to bribe somebody to overthrow the people's government and put back the asinine monarchy.

But those who know the French people know that the most comical thing in the world to-day is the man who hopes for a failure of republican government in France.

The French people are men who know what they WANT; and they GET it. And they are going to KEEP ON getting it.

Their government is stronger than ever. The would-be aristocratic rulers are more foolish and less important than ever.

Our young friend Boni de Castellane has been sent back to the Chamber of Deputies as a freak; and there he sits as a sort of vermin appendix to remind France of times that have gone, never to return. The day for government by such little creatures as de Castellane has gone by. The French don't care to get their laws from gentlemen who get their living from their wives. They don't care any longer for men put into power either by the pocketbooks of rich nobodies or by the "bosom friends" of kings or their brothers.

THE FRENCH ARE RULING THEMSELVES, MAKING A SUCCESS OF IT. THEY ARE RICH, PROSPEROUS, SANE, THOROUGHLY RESPECTED AND FEARED BY THEIR NEIGHBORS.

They prove splendidly the logic of the French mind and the power of men to govern themselves when the mass of the people ACTUALLY CONCENTRATE THEIR MINDS ON PUBLIC QUESTIONS AND UPON GOVERNMENT.

In France there is done by the average citizen at least a thousand times as much earnest thinking on national politics as is done in this country.

It would be good for the United States if we could have injected into our political methods a little of that intense interest in public affairs that characterizes the French nation.

What Has Become of the Merger Bill?

By Prof. Frank Parsons

THE Committee on Railroads nursing the monopolistic merger bill at the State House, waiting till the close of the session with the idea of rushing it through at the last minute without proper discussion or opportunity for public opinion to make itself felt?

We are told on high authority that this is the case; that the merger bill, so much desired by the roads to enable them to buy up the trolley lines and stop competition in the passenger service, and possibly competition in the freight service also, this pet bill of the railroad lobby that not only hands New England over to a railroad monopoly, but to complete it by means of provisions couched in most dangerous terms; this most important and undesirable of all bills pending at the State House, is to be railroaded through in the rush hours at the end of the session when honest members are unable to get the leverage necessary to stop such a bill, and when no time is left for the press to focus the attention of the people upon it.

We understand that two at least of the Railroad Commission favor the bill, and one of them, the chairman of the board, has had several talks about it with the Governor.

But we do not believe the people want the railroads to buy up the trolley lines, because it takes away all real protection against excessive charges.

At Milford, for example, when the railroad and the trolley came together, the suburban fare on both the steam roads and the electric was raised from five cents to ten cents at a stroke.

Come into the open with that bill, and let us have a fair and full discussion of it before it is voted upon.

Do We Need a New Political Party?

EDITOR BOSTON AMERICAN:
In a recent issue of the AMERICAN you invited suggestions or criticisms from your readers in respect to any features of the paper which you might wish to see changed. I am possibly the only person who has written you in reply, and I am writing you in reply to your invitation.

First, I do not believe that political parties are necessary. I believe that the people should elect the best men to represent them, and that they should elect them on the basis of their own merits, and not on the basis of their party affiliations. I believe that the people should elect the best men to represent them, and that they should elect them on the basis of their own merits, and not on the basis of their party affiliations. I believe that the people should elect the best men to represent them, and that they should elect them on the basis of their own merits, and not on the basis of their party affiliations.

In a broad sense, the duties of public men are to represent the people, and to do so in the most efficient manner possible. They should be free from all party affiliations, and should be free to do as they see fit in the discharge of their duties.

THE SORROWS OF SATAN

How They Do It in the Douma

By James J. Montague

"HAT WAS it," cried the frightened czar, "That streak of lightning hit me?"
"It wasn't lightning, Nicholas," Replied the placid Witte.
"It was over at the Douma, and in one of the debates on holding down the Yodka Trust and regulating rates.
The speaker pulled a forty-four and shot some delegates.
For that's the way they do it at the Douma."
"HAT WAS that awful cannonade?" The czar exclaimed. "A bomb?"
"Don't throw a fit, Your Majesty," Said Witte, with perfect calm. "It was over at the Douma, where some differs tried to do.
The Sea of Azov Ship Canal that I'd framed up for you.
We plugged them with some dynamite, and now it's going through.
For that's how we do it in the Douma."
"HAT WAS that fierce volcanic shock?" The czar in terror cried.
"Don't let that worry you at all," The gentle Witte replied. "It was over at the Douma, where the foolish members yammered so loudly for their liberties that presently we burned
A half a ton of melinite, and now they have adjourned.
For that's the way we do it in the Douma."

"Lies" are exactly commercial. They are efforts to trade falsehood for truth.

A Bit of Cotton Factory History

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

IN answer to a question put to him one day by the celebrated Dr. Priorities as to what he considered the most "desirable invention" that remained to be made, Dr. Franklin replied: "A machine capable of spinning two threads at the same time."
The good doctor has no means of knowing that at the very time Priestley and himself were having that conversation, one James Hargreaves, a poor, illiterate Lancashire weaver, was thinking of the machine which, when finished, was to spin eighty threads at once!
One day Hargreaves noticed that a spinning wheel, had been overturned, continued to revolve horizontally as it lay on the floor, and from this he is said to have conceived the first idea of his celebrated Spinning Jenny.
The day Hargreaves noticed that a spinning wheel, had been overturned, continued to revolve horizontally as it lay on the floor, and from this he is said to have conceived the first idea of his celebrated Spinning Jenny.
In carrying out his idea Hargreaves found great difficulty, but he succeeded at length in making a rude machine of eight spindles, which enabled the spinner to produce eight threads at once. With wonderful perseverance the inventor stuck to his task, and in the course of a year or two he had constructed a spinning jenny which spun eighty threads at once.
With the construction of the spinning jenny, in 1768, the old-fashioned spinning wheel was a thing of the past, and the greatest industrial revolution of history was close at hand.
The ignorant workmen moaned Hargreaves and destroyed his machine, but the idea, once born, could not die, and the demoralized machine was sure to be reconstructed at other looms.
Hargreaves died in poverty, but there came along one Richard Arkwright, who not only reproduced Hargreaves's invention, but in his spinning frame immensely improved upon it.
Arkwright's machine performed the whole process in all of the arrangements that it is employed to-day throughout the world's principal textile manufactures, changed from what it was when its inventor finished it.
To the men who thought Arkwright, as they had thought Hargreaves, in addition to the popular "cannon" never made another church broad or liberal.

In the Maytime

By Harry B. Metcalf

LOSE your grumblings and your glooms in a maze of cherry blossoms; Banish all your petty troubles on a bird-note of springing rain.
Let your worries melt their doubts in the music of perfumes That are waiting to entice you where the honeysuckles are;
For a newborn glimmer gleams in the sparkle of the streams.
And hither-and-thither breaks bid you breathe the fullness of the day;
In the sun's alluring beams is the glint of golden dreams Of the glory of the Springtime, in the ecstasy of May.
